About the Archives

On 1 June 2008 Frederikshavn Municipality founded the City Archives of Frederikshavn.

The Archives contain municipal archives from the present-day Frederikshavn Municipality, as well as the former Frederikshavn, Skagen and Sæby Municipalities, including the rural districts that disappeared during the municipal reform of 1970.

Many documents that were sent to the State Archives in Viborg have now been returned to us. You will find a record of these documents on the City Archives' homepage www.frederikshavnstadsarkiv.dk

At the City Archives, you can...

At the City Archives of Frederikshavn you can find much varied information, as the municipality is involved in most local affairs.

You can ask the archives:

- When a building was erected.
- The whys and wherefores of street names.
- About mayors and members of the district council.
- About school and class reunions.
- About local clubs and organizations.
- How much tax your grandfather paid.

At the city archives you can:

- Get help finding information.
- Search the Archive databases for documents, pictures and publications.
- Examine documents in our reading room.
- Visit the website www.arkiv.dk and look at the 12.000 digitalized pictures from Frederikshavn.

Genealogy in the City Archives of Frederikshavn

There is a preliminary guide for genealogists on our website. It is a short English version of a guide, which is available from the City Archives of Frederikshavn (only in Danish). This guide comprises the most important groups of records for genealogists in the City Archives. This minor guide is a brief introduction to genealogical research in the collections of the City Archives.

In addition, this guide gives details of those statutes that assign release dates and access to public records.
